SOUTHERN BAPTISTS: A PRAYING PEOPLE IMPACTING A LOST WORLD

South Asians across the globe — dispersed but not forgotten

POOOR MIGRANT WORKERS doing the jobs nobody else will do. Refugees who flee injustice and hopelessness for a chance at life. Affluent business professionals, middle-class shop owners and blue-collar workers. A man riding the tube in London. A couple sipping tea in a Vancouver café. A family watching the tide roll in on a beach in South Africa. Students at the local university. Many South Asians chose to leave their homelands, but for others, the decision was made by previous generations. The result is a diaspora with pockets of South Asians across the globe.

They build temples, mosques and gurdwaras (Sikh places of worship), congregating together for significant events. Some wear the clothes, eat the food, and speak the language of their heritage. Others do not have strong emotional ties to their past but continue, at least nominally, in the religion of their ancestors.

From Singapore to Toronto, more than 20 million diaspora South Asians need to know the Savior. God is able to reach them wherever they are. Nowhere is beyond His reach.

Films take God's story to the unreached

THE GOD'S STORIES film series is set to make a tremendous impact on the Muslim world and beyond as God uses it to reach people in some of the world's most restrictive countries. Each of the first nine films in the series tells the biblical story of an Old Testament character, while pointing to the coming Messiah. The tenth film, The Savior, is perhaps the best retelling ever of the life of Christ.

Filed by a Middle Eastern production company with Arab actors, the films strike a chord with Muslims throughout the world, including South Asian Muslims. In fact, the largest number of YouTube viewers of the films in one South Asian language is from a "closed" country in the Middle East!

Pray as we work to license and distribute the films that they can be dubbed into more South Asian languages and that many will be open to the Good News as they encounter Christ through these films.

"Do you not say, 'There are yet four months, then comes the harvest'? Look, I tell you, lift up your eyes, and see that the fields are white for harvest."

Hope for the homeless

BURT* AND OMAR* sat hunched together in Omar’s sleeping quarters at the construction site where he works. As they read the Bible together, Burt said, “What I like about you, Omar, is that you search for the truth.” Omar responded, “Yes, because ‘You shall know the truth and the truth shall set you free!’” He had memorized this verse in a Sunday night English class that reaches out to Rohingya immigrants.

Omar had risked his life in a harrowing boat journey from Myanmar seeking to escape persecution. His boat had gone adrift to an uninhabited island where he survived by eating crab and licking water from a dripping rock until he was picked up by the Indian coast guard and brought to Malaysia. He has no passport and no country willing to claim him as its own. Yet, the God of all creation is drawing Omar to Him. Pray for this truth to sink deep into Omar’s heart and that Omar will embrace it as his own.
